ALLIES OPEN NEW DRIVE IN BELGIUM

FIELD MARSHAL HAIG OPENS TREMENDOUS OFFENSIVE
ALONG WIDE FRONT IN FRANCE AND BEL-GIUM.

IS IMPORTANT BATTLE

If Captured Positions Are Held Will Be Biggest Success of Months—Germans Resist Fiercely.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
British headquarters in France and
Belgium, Sept. 20.—Field Marshal Haig's offensive, which was begun at 5 o'clock this morning on the Belgian battlefront, is proceeding with marked success, especially in the crucial sector between the Ypres-Roulers railroad and the Hollebeke.

The German infantry is making a most determined resistance to retain this vital ground, and the Teuton artillery is retaliating heavily against the British big guns.
The British light troops are in progress in the neighborhood of Inverness, Copee, Nun's Wood and Glencorse Wood. If the attackers maintain the positions to which they have advanced in this sector, they have accomplished one of the most remarkable and most important achievements of recent months.

Battle of Menin Road.
Today's offensive will be known as the battle of the Menin road. Fair weather had improved the ground, but the mud still was deep and the fog thick. High velocity guns increased as the battle progressed. Tangled barbed wire and shattered trees.

The German defenses were composed largely of concrete redoubts, and the British had to dig their way through a stream of bullets into the ranks of the advancing troops from concrete redoubts. Every little elevation and all the woods were choked with rapid-fire guns.

The British encountered hard fighting at many places, but their magnificent artillery works had done much to make the first stage of their drive easier.

Artillery Fire Increases.
Canadian headquarters in France, Sept. 19 by Canadian radio has been greater today aided by brilliant sunshine than for several days past. The tendency of the enemy to devote more attention to shelling our back areas with long range, high velocity guns increases as they use of gas shells in actions where non-combatants live. The object apparently is to terrorize mine workers, and their mines, and to more difficult work of raising coal.

Barrage Sweeps Lines.
British headquarters in France and Belgium, Sept. 20.—The British barrages swept the country like a broom and the attack was made in the morning but were unaware of the exact direction. There was a light rain last night, but the weather cleared this morning and the visibility is improving.

Berlin Admits Attacks.
Berlin, Sept. 20.—A formidable drive on the Flanders front early this morning reports the German press. The attack was followed at daybreak by strong English attacks on a broad front.

In Belgium.
London, Sept. 20.—The British front on the Belgian front attacked the German position at 5:40 this morning. Field Marshal Haig reported that satisfactory progress was made and that the British had captured valuable property.

Field Marshal Haig's selection of the battlefront in Belgium as a scene of his latest offensive, indicates a broad continuation of the German plan of the army of Crown Prince Rupprecht of Bavaria from the western coast of Belgium and of the German submarine and aeroplane bases at Neuport, Ostend, and Zeebrugge.
The British drive
is being made near Roulers and Courtrai, from which Belgium towns, according to dispatches, the Germans have been evacuating
the civilian population.

Menaces Zeebrugge.
The new British thrust comes upon the heels of a German stroke against the German positions by the French on the Verdun front, where infantry fighting raged all day Wednesday.

Students of military strategy believe that the use of gas is given here in the war office is to compel a general retirement of the Germans along the northern end of the West Flanders front. If this can be achieved, the German submarine base at Zeebrugge would be seriously menaced as well as the German hold on Antwerp.

Comparative quiet now exists upon the eastern, Italian, Rumanian, Macedonian and Greek battle fronts.

The Odessa Campaign.
Petrograd, Sept. 20.—That Germany has abandoned—at least for the time being—her designs upon Odessa, was the opinion expressed by competent observers today. Aside from artillery duelling and local infantry operations there has been no big fighting on the Rumanian front for two weeks. If the Germans should have to be made by way of Moldavia the only Rumanian province which is not held by the Rumanians, the advances in the city is quiet, after having passed through a series of revolutionary disorders.

CRONHOLM DENIES HE WAS OFFERED ORDER

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Mexico City, Sept. 20.—Folke Cronholm, former Swedish charge d'affaires in Mexico, in a statement today denied that the German minister, Von Eckhardt, offered him a decoration in a German order, or that he received any such decoration. He also denied that he had furnished information to the Germans with such information. Cronholm maintained silence regarding the dispatch in which Von Eckhardt recommended him for a decora-

Berlin's Reply To The Pope to Dodge Real Belgian Issue

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Berlin, Sept. 20, via London.—While the text of the German reply to Pope Benedict's peace proposals will not be announced before Saturday, the German press and parliamentary circles concerned in the prediction that the message will not contain specific declarations concerning Belgium.

The fate of that country just now is calling forth extensive pan-German troubling, due to current rumors that the government had definitely decided to abandon all intentions of permanent control in occupied Belgian territory.

While these reports are said to have basis in the alleged "trial balloon" sent out by England, they equally carry the marks of an obvious artificial inspiration for the purpose of supporting the annexationist campaign.

U. S. CONTROLS 75 PER CENT OF FOOD

[By International Press.]

Washington, Sept. 20.—Approximately seventy-five percent of the food supply of America is today under control of the United States. More amazing is the fact that the control has been made voluntarily. Today the United States food administration, by virtue of its power of cen-suring food industries, controls the price in staple food products of the world.

The food administration has been in action but five weeks. Prior to that time the official power in that field was estimated at close to $100,000,000 has been saved for the households of the United States.

The first big accomplishment of the food administration was the control of wheat prices. This came through voluntary agreement of elevator owners and millers. Elevators and milling plants are now subject to regulation. The price of wheat has been fixed and estimates today in the hands of food administration officials show that millions of dollars are being saved for consumers by January 1st.

Meat packers are now operating only under license from the food administration. The canning industry, vegetables and other food producing industries are about to be placed under license.

Through these licenses the food administration will stabilize prices.
It is not the intention of Herbert C.
Hoover to fix prices, but merely to maintain price competition and prevent speculation and hoarding. With license needed for the production of a food industry producers will speculate and hoard at the risk of revocation of their licenses. Milk and half a dozen other commodities are under control of the food administration. Bread prices have dropped in many cities. Within a few days the food administration will issue regulations which will regulate prices throughout the entire United States.

Waste in foodstuffs has been cut to a minimum through the conservation program carried out by the only means of estimating the waste of American households.
Reports to the food administration show that the amount of garbage in the United States has been cut in 40 to 50 percent in the past two months.

Stimulation of production also has been accomplished. Plans are under way for the reclamation of great areas of idle stock. Vegetable and fruit growers have greatly increased their crops. Next year's harvest will be even larger than that of this year.

The latest work of foodstuffs among the allies has also been undertaken.

In five weeks this much has been accomplished, and Herbert C. Hoover says: "We are hardly under way."

FRENCH WINES ARE HIGH BUT PLENTIFUL

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Sesiers, France, Sept. 20.—Frenchmen are in no danger of going thirsty this year, but they will pay dearly for their favorite beverage. The government can check speculation in wine.

The yield of grapes will be from 40 to 50 per cent greater than that of last year. The year's crop is nearly fifty per cent greater than that of 1915, yet wine costs twice as much as it did a year ago and three times as much as it did in 1914. Ordinary 12 of 8 cents a quart for red and 10 cents for white, at retail. They bring twenty-five cents, respectively, today.

Reasons for the high price, lack of distributing facilities, scarcity of wine casks, bottle, and wine tank cars, insufficiency of help, high cost of fertilizers and chemicals, and the natural economic effect of the crop from the wine country as the reasons for the rise. Another reason is the purchase of "wine on the vine" and successive transfers of the crop from one owner to another, even before the grapes have ripened, the same system as adopted by speculators in coal importation licenses last winter.

This abnormal dealing has made ordinary wines relatively dearer than the fine wines. Burgundies, clarets, and good white wines, generally are abundant and have not increased excessively in price, but they suffer from speculation and they suffer quite as much as ordinary grades, even more in some cases, from the insufficient supply of bottles and casks.

Minister of provisions proposes to either requisition the entire crop, annulling all speculative contracts, and supervise the distribution to the retail trade, or fix a maximum selling price at which common wines
may be sold to the consumer.

WAR EXCESS WAS TOPIC DISCUSSED BY CONGRESS TODAY

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Washington, Sept. 20.—Taxation of war excess profits today became virtually the only important dispute remaining between the senate and house conferences on the war tax bill, and prospects of agreement on this were so promising that a report is expected Monday.

The conferees today adopted a compromise zone system for a slight increase in second class postage rates.
Then they turned to the war profit dispute under virtual agreement to revert largely to the house excess profit tax plan for taxation of profits at graduated rates in excess of eight per cent on invested capital.

The new second class postage provision, according to reports seeping through the conferees' secrecy order, is said to make no increase within a zone of 250 miles, the general circulation of newspapers. Beyond that, increases beginning with one-quarter of a cent and would apply beginning July 1 next. These rates would increase annually to a maximum to be reached in four years.

Discussion of the automobile tax feature was a standstill owing to the widely diverse views of Senator Simmons and Representative Kitchen, each still was threatening to insist upon the plan of his branch.
But hope was entertained among other conferees that a compromise tax on manufacturers tentatively agreed upon several days ago would prevail.

The conference report on the $11-600,000,000 credit bill was adopted today by the senate without a roll call.
Approval by the house and final enactment expected early next week.

Explains Destroyer Program.
Secretary Daniels and his aids today explained the navy's great destroyer construction program to the senate appropriations committee considering the $7,000,000,000 war deficiency appropriation bill. Immediate appropriation of $225,000,000 towards the $350,000,000 program is provided in the bill which the committee hopes to present to the senate tomorrow.

Records for speed and unanimity were established in the bill's consideration. It passed the house on Sept.
9 and the senate Sept. 15, after brief debate and by unanimous vote. Commerce reached agreement yesterday within half an hour and today's senate discussion occupied but fifteen minutes.

The bill authorizes $4,000,000,000 in new bonds for allied loans, $3,538,000-000 for converting bonds previously authorized for that and other purposes and $2,000,000,000 each other purpose.
The new bonds are to be a 4 per cent convertible and subject to income surtaxes and war profit in excess taxes.

Before the conference report was approved today Senator Weeks inquired if there is a definite plan for extending loans to the allies. Senator Stone, chair of the committee, said he had no plan to announce before the committee, but presumably the credits would not have been approved unless congress was satisfied the reason for the loan was sound.

Senator Weeks said the reason for the loan was sound. The bill authorizes $21,000,000,000, said Senator Weeks. It seems every messenger in Washington is bringing to the capitol requests for additional appropriations. I have some curiosity as to what is being done with the money.

FIND APPARATUS AT LAKE SUMMER HOME

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Waukesha, Sept. 20.—A federal agent last night called on a summer home on Pine lake, Waukesha county, of a prominent Milwaukee business man, and carried away a wireless apparatus said to consist merely of a "boy" outfit.

The apparatus finally had been used at the Milwaukee home of a business man and taken to the country for the purpose of possibly being able to communicate with friends of Milwaukee. However, the instrument had not been set up or installed.

The federal agent in question, and suggested the wireless material be boxed and sealed. The wife of the Milwaukee business man, rather than submit to any further indignity, suggested that the outfit be taken away altogether, which was done.

er, an alleged political lieutenant of Mayor Duggan, was indicted today on charges of conspiracy and operating a confidence scheme. Bonds of defendants were fixed at $7,500 each. The two in-discharge of a rifle, which he was carrying down stairs, Edwin Gurney,

LIBERTY BONDS PLAY PART IN FAMILY ROW

When the case of Andrew Olson, charged with beating his wife, was called in court this morning it was dismissed, the wife refusing to appear against her husband. Olson told the court the trouble started last summer when he bought a Liberty Bond. His wife, who he alleges has strong German sympathies, objected and trouble started. It was augmented when their son, on the advice of a sister, bought a bond. Olson is a good, sober, industrious citizen and has been in the employ of one firm for the past ten years, and his arrest came as a surprise to his friends. He has never been in trouble before.

EDUCATOR NAMED BY U. S. BOARD FOR IMPORTANT TASK

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Stockholm, Sept. 20.—It was announced today by the Swedish ministry of foreign affairs today that after publication of the Washington state department of the code telegram provided by Count Von Lurzburg, the German minister to Argentina, to the Swedish legation at Buenos Aires, the Swedish government on September 10 asks through the intermediary of the Swedish minister at Berlin whether it was true that the German representative at Buenos Aires had dispatched and the minister of foreign affairs at Berlin had received the telegrams in question.

When the reply was received, the Swedish minister at Berlin, on September 15, was instructed by the Swedish government to hand to the German government a strong protest in consequence of these incidents, and to lay stress on the fact that it had been confirmed beyond all doubt that the German minister at Buenos Aires had abused the confidence of Sweden.

WAR IS TO BE ONE OF ECONOMIC ADVANTAGE

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Atlantic City, Sept. 20.—In an address today of the war convention of American business men, James A. Farrell of the National Foreign Trade Council, asserted that the war would

"Germany," he said, "must be approaching exhaustion, but the end of the hostilities was being delayed because of the condition of her material forces."

BACK FROM A VISIT TO ITALIAN FRONT

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Rome, Sept. 20.—Lieutenant Col. G.
F. Baker, chairman of the American Red Cross commission to Italy, has just returned from a fortnight visit to the Italian front where he traveled the whole distance from Carso to Trentino with a view to making a report on the assistance which the United States can give in this hard fought field.

Speaking to the Associated Press,
Baker said:
"Nobody can have an impression of the difficulties on the Italian front and the admirable way in which the army meets them unless he sees them with his own eyes. I saw the advanced positions, the trench emplacements, the dressing stations, the wounded, the thirteen wounded passed within seventeen days. I found, without exception, cleanliness, efficiency, maintenance, most skillful doctors and surgeons."

CHINA'S ENTRY IN WAR SAVES MONEY

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Peking, Sept. 20.—China's entry into the European war, according to the Chinese government, will save the government of interest payments upon obligations owed to the German government and German corporations aggregating nearly $335,000,000 gold. The greatest single obligation China owes to Germany is the Boxer indemnity money, amounting to about $106,850-000 gold. The next item is of importance is two loans of $40,000,000 gold each known as the first and second Anglo-German loans and negotiated through the German-Asiatic bank.

Germany's portion of the reorganization of the German-Asiatic bank, the five power group, is $25,000,000 gold. Railway loans made by the German-Asiatic bank aggregate over $4,000,000 gold.

In addition there are miscellaneous short term loans made by various German firms, which are estimated at a total of $4,000,000 gold.
German mining properties whose value is estimated at $1,500,000 gold will probably be taken over by the Chinese government and sold, the Chinese government holding the stock until the conclusion of peace.

The German-Asiatic bank with branches at Peking, Tientsin, Tai-anfu, Hankow, and Canton, is the largest German enterprise in business in China, and has a capital of about $7,000,000 gold. It is charged that this bank has financed much of the German intrigue throughout the Orient.

U. S. STEEL BOOSTS WAGES OF EMPLOYEES 10 PER CENT

American Officers Receive War Cross For Aiding French

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

American Headquarters in France,
Sept. 19.—Brigadier General George
B. Duncan and Major Chambeau King are the first American officers to receive the war cross in the French army. They were awarded the distinction in the recent Verdun offensive, when they acted as observation officers in forward artillery posts.
Whether the officers will be permitted to accept the decorations is not known.

The citation for General Duncan reads:
"He assisted our forces under circumstances of extreme danger during a very violent bombardment at Verdun."
A piece of shrapnel struck the steel hat of the officer.
Major King also visited the forward dressing stations.

FOOTBALL PRACTICE IN ORDER AT U. OF W.

Thirty-Five Men Report to Coach Richards for First Practice of the Year.

Coach John R. Richards, of the University of Wisconsin football team, has rounded together a squad of thirty-five men with which to begin the preliminary work for his football team. Although war has taken some of his men, the calibre of the men who have appeared up to the present time has been excellent. Official practice started Monday afternoon with the arrival of Captain Howard Hancock, after his being delayed to work on a farm near Owens, Wisconsin.

Several veterans with whom the new coach is working are, Captain Hancock, Simpson, Kichhefer and Carpenter. Elder, the local athlete, was expected to be on the squad but he has enlisted in the United States aviation school at the University of Illinois. His loss will be badly felt because he was one of the best backs at the university but is willing to work and has plenty of weight and height to aid him in his fight for a place on the eleven.

Practice is now being held twice a day during the few days remaining before the opening of the school year. The men appearing at Camp Randall in the morning and afternoon to men are being driven at a rapid rate in order that they will soon be in shape to get down to the hard work of the practice season. The work now consists mainly in handling the ball, running and some tackling practice. Coach Tom Jones, of the freshmen, is now aiding Richards in the preliminary work.

Simpson is being groomed for the quarterback position this fall. He had a trial at it last fall but was injured in mid-season. Simpson has been a member of the team for two years and has spent most of his time playing football. At this position he was star, but Coach Richards feels that he would be a good man to have as the pivot player of the squad.

Davey and Miller, freshmen stars, will be given the first trial as half-backs with Jacoby at full. Jacoby was a wonder on the first year squad last fall and should develop into a valuable man. Davey and Miller are fast runners but their ability in the backfield is unknown.

Carpenter will be a fixture at center due to his excellent work last fall, his first year on the team when he was chosen on the second All-Western team. He may be shifted to another place, but it seems doubtful. Hancock will play at tackle with Kichhefer at the other position on the other side of the line. Krawiec was a member of the squad last year and will try for the center position if Carpenter is shifted.

The choice of the ends will be very difficult as the material is of unknown quality. Just at the present time Silver and Weston are showing up well, but the choice of these men will depend on the strength of the Badger team.

Coach Richards is not making any predictions as to the strength of the team but is going to work with the idea of perfecting a machine which will represent the Badgers in a creditable way this season. All schools are presented with the same problem due to the war and all will have to build up new teams. Wisconsin will have an equal chance with the remaining teams of the conference and will undoubtedly finish well up in the list.

The first game of the schedule will be played with Beloit on October 6 at Madison.

OHIO STATE LOOKS FOR WINNING TEAM

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Columbus, O., Sept. 20.—Despite the war, the Ohio State football team, which won the Western Conference football championship last season, will begin this season with its varsity team practically intact. Few of Ohio's players have enlisted or left school.

Coach Jack Wilce, former Wisconsin star football player, who led the Buckeyes to victory last fall, is confident that his team will be strong enough to carry off the championship again.

The first practice of the year brought out a fairly good list of returning veterans and one or two very promising men from last year's freshman squad to fill in the gaps. "Chick" Harley, Ohio State's crack half back who won a place on the all-American team last season probably will not back this year as he is planning on entering the aviation corps.

Hotcamp at center and McDonald at end have joined the marine reserves and will not be back. The other men upon whom Coach Wilce is depending are Peabody and Bolen, ends; Harold Courtney and Karch, tackles; Seddon and Captain H. Courtney, guards, and Van Dyke, center. This means that the line will be practically intact.

Verges, last year's quarter, will not be in school this year. Friedman, who was Verges' understudy, will be on hand, however. Roedel is back to play fullback. Stinchcomb, of last year's freshmen team, probably will play one of the halfback positions. Enough sophomore talent is available to make possible a good list of substitutes the coaches say. Ohio State's season will open Sept. 29, when the Case school eleven will play here.

RAY SCHALK BEST CATCHER IN SERIES

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

New York, Sept. 20.—Mention of Ray Schalk is alone sufficient to convince the baseball world that Chicago will have a catching staff in the world's series that knows no equal in the game. Comparison with the Giants is merely a matter of comparing the best National league catching staff with the best catching staff in the world.

Aside from Schalk the White Sox catchers are only average, but there is no reason to suspect that Clarence Rowland will use any catcher other than the fast little backstop who has meant so much to the Chicago pennant chances. Injury to him would be a terrific blow to the Sox chances for victory, although Lynn is a capable man and Jenkins can do a good job.

Schalk was the smallest catcher in the majors when he made his debut with the White Sox and it was freely predicted he would never be able to stand up under the hard work required of a big leaguer. He dashed this prediction to smithereens by showing the world there wasn't a catcher in the game who even approached him.

Schalk, besides being the best receiver, is a hitter of no mean proportions. He hasn't slammed the ball for any remarkable figure this year, his average reaching only .230 or thereabouts. He is a regular .260 performer, however, and his hitting doubtless will be over that mark for the short drive. At throwing to bases he is a wonder, and unlike most catchers, he has speed on the bases. He is always in the right place, full of nerve and quick to act. He probably is the most valuable man the White Sox possess, with the possible exception of Eddie Collins.

Both McCarty and Rariden are good hitters, dangerous in the pinches. For a time last year McCarty, as a member of the Dodgers, led the National league batsmen. He slumped after his transfer from behind the plate while with Brooklyn to a job at subaltern for Jake Daubert at first base. The worry of his position probably responsible. He began slamming the ball again after being traded to the Giants.

Early this year Rariden started off at a .300 clip, far ahead of former marks by him, but he slumped later in the season, and only recently has he begun to get back to heavy hitting. Rariden is an expert at backing plays on the bases. Both Rariden and McCarty are artists at checking base runners.

George Gibson may get into the series, either to handle the shoots of Ferdie Schupp or from sentimental reasons. In his day Gibson was one of the game's best receivers, but he is very slow now. This veteran, however, wears a wise head and packs a batting wallop that is sufficient to put terror into the heart of any pitcher.

The series catching duties may be expected to fall wholly upon Schalk for the White Sox and Rariden for the Giants, the latter because he must be ready for instant duty at any time McCarty is taken from the game to allow someone to run for him.

As that is the case, only one conclusion can be reached. The White Sox will loom far in advance of the National league rivals for the catch. Only injury to Schalk can prevent this fact from counting heavily in favor of the American league chances of again crushing the older rivals in the post-season classic.

CONSIDER CHANGES FOR BOXING BOUTS

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Milwaukee, Sept. 20.—The state athletic commission, which controls boxing in Wisconsin, is considering adopting a rule which will compel boxers scheduled to appear in Milwaukee matches, to do their training here three or four days prior to the contest.

Complaint was made that boxers far to keep their agreements to train here, in some instances not arriving until the day of the contest. The commission and patrons of the sport, therefore, are not given an opportunity to judge their condition. In the past, boxers from the east have been in the habit of doing their training in Chicago.

Raymond Cahill, player, manager and umpire in several minor leagues and the past season in the Western Association, was in the first contingent of drafted men for the army to be sent to St. Louis and was put in charge of his squad enroute to the training camp in Kansas. Cahill has the qualities that count in the leadership of men and his friends look for him to assert them in the army as he has done in baseball.

Sport Snap Shots

MORRIS MILLER

Don't use your meat hand to stop hard hit balls that are batted back at you. If you do you may put an end to your pitching career. This is the advice Allen Russell, Yankee spit-baller, has to offer brother members of the pitching fraternity, and it is well worth consideration. Early this spring Russell reached for a hard hit ball through the box with his nude finger. He got his hand on the ball and succeeded in retarding its progress, but immediately afterwards he suffered a sharp pain in the first digits of his pitching hook, which was followed by numbness. Then his hand grew cold and he had to retire from the game.

Since that time Russell has suffered with a new ailment, that of cold fingers. It only comes upon him at intervals, but at such times he is unable to grip the ball, and therefore unable to control it, so he often has to leave the mound. Sore arms, due to a cold are common. The sprained tendon, wrenched shoulder and the unexplainable loss of speed and control at intervals is also common. But cold fingers and a numb pitching hand is a new ailment.

When the title of king-pin pitcher of the season is bestowed upon an American league pitcher, there hardly will be any one to dispute it with Eddie Clotte of the White Sox. He leads in numbers of games won and in low averages of earned runs to the game. He has pitched more innings than any other pitcher in the league. There is not a pitching "feet" he has not performed, starting off with his no-hit game against the Browns. Eddie may have been a long time coming, but when he arrived he landed with a bang. This is his tenth season in the big ring and he is a discard from two clubs. Always a good pitcher, this year he is a great one. Shine ball? Perhaps. But he must be given credit for getting by with the stuff, whatever it is, that counts.

William Rafter, collegian, who was signed by the New York Giants last spring and sent to the minors for a month from which he graduated to an ambulance unit, attracted some attention on his way to ship in New York by carrying a suit case on which he had printed in big white letters, "To Berlin, via Paris."

Ten Million, the little outfielder who played in the Northwestern league and had a brief trial with St. Louis in the Nationals, has quit his sporting goods business in Seattle and entered one of the Army's officers' training camps. He is small in size but valiant and is sure he can make a bunch of rookies in khaki obey orders.

The weather smiled on Peoria throughout its stay in the Central league, with one or two exceptions until the final day, when rain prevented the Labor Day double-header. Peoria had planned to make this its biggest day of the season for the attendance of 5,000 a crowd record for the season was promised, but rain spoiled everything.

Complaint has been heard that the season in the majors has not developed a single new star, and in a sense it is correct, for the "newcomers" who have done meritorious work are practically all combacks to the big show. However, Walton Cruise of the St. Louis Cardinals, though having had a previous trial, can be classed as a recruit, for his previous stay with the Cardinals before going to St. Paul was brief. And he certainly has made good. For the first half of the season he was a contender for the batting honors of the National league. Of late he has fallen off in his hitting, but he still bats around .300 and that is a high figure in the National this year, for the pitchers seem to have the edge and the .300 list at last accounts in cluded only ten regular players.

HIGH SCHOOL BOYS TAKE MANY HONORS AT THE STATE FAIR

Team of Eight Janesville Boys, Students of Agriculture at Local School, Win Prizes.

After this year the Janesville high school will be the main in the educational contests of the state. It will be a force to be reckoned with in the competitive work of similar institutions. A group of eight boys who had been taking courses in the state fair at the local high school, went to the Wisconsin state fair last week and entered the competitions of the boys' and girls' club work offered by the United States Bureau of Education. L. L. Buick was the official in charge of this work on behalf of the state. The boys making the entries were: Edmund Overton, Malcolm Paul, Francis Cunningham, Charles H. Gessner, Lovel Black, John McCann, Harry McCann and Elmer Dalton. They were in charge of Prof. A. B. West, who was with them throughout the week. In the stock raising contest there were about sixty boys from perhaps fifteen cities of the state who entered in the different classes. There were thirty prizes offered in the different classes, and of these the Janesville boys won ten. All the boys secured something in prizes, their net takings being $31.50, which was a very large percentage of the $30 in prizes which was offered by the state. In individual judging, one of these boys, Lovel Black, won second place in competition with the state. His showing was very marked, being only three-fourths of one percent below the winner of the first prize, who was a boy from Onalaska. In a contest of judging by a team of three boys, Onalaska won first prize, Lynn club of Walworth, second, and Janesville had third. Edgerton carried off fourth prize, so that in the showing by counties, Rock county was second, Walworth third, and Janesville fourth. The three boys comprising the team were all members of the junior class, and in intelligence and knowledge of the subject were a credit to their instructors in the school.

There were many entries in Milwaukee in the cat contests, and of these the Janesville boys had their share. There were five boys who entered their cats, having previously exhibited them at the fair held here in August. In the baby beef class, Harry McCann won first prize and John McCann fourth. In the beef calf class, Elmer Gessner won second, McCann, third, and John McCann fourth.

In all, the boys earned $43 in prize money, which they consider quite worth while. Beside the competition of the pupils in the different classes, the boys were also in direct competition with the county agricultural classes, which, being located in the rural districts, have more opportunity to the first hand study of stock than do city boys. The local boys having vegetable gardens, also made a showing in some classes and took several prizes. The Janesville high school also had a booth with a general exhibit of school work, which made a very creditable showing. The trip was a very inexpensive one for the boys, even if money had been taken, as they lived in tents at the Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A. camp, where they contributed fifty cents a day to the running expenses of the place and did the housework. There were 178 boys registered at this place, all divided up into groups of ten, with a supervisor in charge. Also there were eighty-one girls taken care of and supervised in the same manner. The only other expense to the boys was the entry fee of one dollar required from all contestants, which included their entrance ticket to the fair during the entire week. The experience gained by the boys during last week at the fair cannot help but be of great value to them in the line of the agricultural work they are doing. And it has been able to see the possibilities of great things for the future. More boys are to be interested in preparing for the future. They must be started immediately after the holidays to enter the calf contests, as an accurate record of feedings, etc., must be made. The girls, too, are to be encouraged to compete in some of the many classes offered for their work.

FIND NEW WAY TO PRODUCE GASOLINE

Washington, Sept. 20.—Like miracle workers of old Uncle Sam is extracting gasoline from the air.
Equipped with their test-tubes and fume-burners, government chemists are doing the things that cannot be done. The latest "impossible" achievement is a new method of obtaining gasoline.
The new method consists of robbing gasoline from natural gas by absorption.
By the new method, the gasoline in natural gas, though extremely lean, can be absorbed in oil from which it is separated by distillation. Natural gasoline from each thousand cubic feet of gas have been treated with success, where formerly this gasoline went to waste and in addition constituted a clogging nuisance and expense in pipes.
This new absorption process is likely to supplant the older compression and condensation method of producing the last two years. Gasoline thus obtained is especially valuable for it can be blended with naphtha or other volatile hydrocarbons for automobile and kerosene made into an acceptable motor spirit.
The absorption method is radically different. At present it is restricted to the treatment of large volumes of gas, too lean for profitable treatment by compression. But experts expect the value of this new process will be extended broadly.

EVERYDAY ETIQUETTE

(Miss Hoyt will answer in this paper all questions on matters of etiquette addressed to her in care of this paper. If a personal answer is desired enclose a two-cent stamp.)

When in evening dress, men hide their watch chains. No jewelry of any kind is fashionable except rings. (INEXPERIENCED.) A meal can be served daintily without a servant. The hostess should have everything possible in the table, so that she will not have to rise often. She may serve the soup, and her husband may carve and serve the meat. The vegetables may be passed, so that the guests may help themselves. The salad may be placed on the table with the meat course, if that arrangement will eliminate confusion, and the desert may be placed on a side table, or buffet, all ready to set before the guests. You should feel no embarrassment because a servant is beyond your means. The hostess who can manage a jolly little dinner without help should be an object to admire.

PAT: You should not sit in the street cars or on a park bench with your arm around your best girl. You are very unfortunate in having no place to do your courting; nevertheless, I cannot advise you to do it in public. It really is not good form.

News Notes from Movieland

—BY DAISY DEAN

WHAT YOU SEE WHEN MOVIE PAGES TURN BACK 5 YEARS

Five Years Ago
The Bill Hart of the Movies was Broncho Billy Anderson. He was making "westerns" at the rate of per fortnight. The critics called him "The world's most popular star."
John Bunny returned from fourteen weeks spent in England filming "Pickwick" and other distinguished English subjects.
The dashing Mr. Kerrigan and his company of cowboys rode up the main street of Santa Barbara and inaugurated the American studio in that town. That was when the Kerrigan pay envelope contained $50 every week—some weeks.

"The coming of Columbus" with three hundred persons in the cast, was filmed and headed as a "gigantic spectacle." But it was in three reels and consequently wasn't a success. The exhibitor wouldn't run more than two reels at a single show.
Sarah Bernhardt, the first important stage star to recognize the movies, took the test for balance in one picture. But the Parisian producers deducted the cost of production.
Today
Broncho Billy is now one of the country's finest little two-handed promoters. It was even rumored at one time that he was going to buy a ball club. He hasn't been in a picture for years.
John Bunny has passed to the land of shadows. For the first time since his death one of his productions is being reissued. Flora Finch, his old partner, has a company of her own.
J. Warren Kerrigan looks better in an evening suit now than in cowboy attire. And he's probably a greater matinee idol than Wally Reid or Francis X. Bushman. Also he has his own company with Parnell.
The two-reel feature is practically a thing of the past. Productions twelve reels in length are common. The "average" film is five reels long. Even comedies, long at 500 feet five years ago, are two and three reels.
Sarah Bernhardt might be described as still being in the movies. She recently starred in a patriotic film called "The Mother of France." And the chances are she got $5,000 instead of $300 for her work.

Gail Kane wants to be a bird woman. She took a bit of a fly first just for a picture and became so fascinated with the lure of the air that she went into the matter in earnest. She has already taken the test for balance in the air, which consists of being blind-folded and twirled around twenty times on a revolving piano stool and then expected to focus the eyes promptly when the blind fold is taken off. Miss Kane was one of the few who answered truthfully when they asked her during the test, if she had ever been seasick. Only once. The exhibitor will admit to a tendency to seasickness.
"I promptly told the truth," she said, "and admitted that I am sometimes seasick. Not violently, you know—but well enough. And it was my salvation, for they told me that it was a sign that I would be a good airwoman. My balance test was perfect. I discovered, although I thought my chances were gone when I grew a trifle dizzy. Then they told me that it was a good sign, too, because otherwise how would I know if the machine went wrong and was falling. Being a bird woman is almost as interesting as being in the pictures."

The Daily Novelette

ONE A MINUTE.

Triggerfinger McGore, champion cattle and check raiser of the middle west, was slowly but noisily consuming an oyster stew in Laley's bivalvery in New York City, N. Y., when suddenly he uttered an outburst of anguish and a roar of rage and clapped a hand to his mouth.
"Wassallah commotion!" demanded Laley, striding over.
"There's a rock in this here stew, that's the commotion!" roared Triggerfinger McGore. "Almost blew up one of my favorite teeth. It did! And, removing his hand from his mouth, he disclosed a round, gleaming object, which the practiced eye of Yewka Laley spotted for a pearl immediately.
"Well, well, stranger, I'm sorry for the accident," he said soothingly. "An' I'll see as it don't occur again. Jes' to show there ain't no hard feelin's, I'll give you five dollars all in one bill, and you can read the name over that there rock and I'll hold it up in front of the cook in one fist while I'm a-leekin' of him with the other."
"Glad to, pard, glad to," responded Triggerfinger, completely placated. And he handed over the shining object and pocketed the five spot.
Half an hour later, after sending in an order to the Blowhard Glass Co. for another peck of beads, he was sitting in Castaway Cullen's oyster stewery and fryery, again clapping his hand to his mouth and roaring ragally.

AMUSEMENTS

(Notices furnished by the theatres.)

MYERS THEATRE.

There is no assumption on the part of any of the creators of the piece that "Make Yourself at Home" is intended for high-brow consumption, or appeals in the slightest to any sort of intelligent sentiment. Such native frankness deserves to be treated leniently, at least in advance of a more intimate knowledge of the contents and deportment of "Make Yourself at Home."
Connecting the story there are eighteen musical numbers, written by Earl Carroll, composer of "So Long Lullaby," "Canary Cottage," "The Love Mill" and "Pretty Mrs. Smith," the most noteworthy of Carroll's songs in "Make Yourself at Home" being "For You and Me," "If I Could Read the Kisses Others Printed on Your Lips," "That's Where the Golden West Begins," and "Southern Moon," several of which are the whistling variety and have already become popular.

The cast includes some well-known funmaking favorites headed by Mamie Welter, Sid Harry, Haldee Brosse, Perry Daville, Florence Lawrence, Thomas Williams, Blanche Duthin and Sam Bransky.

SCHOOLS DIRECTED TO TEACH PATRIOTIC SONGS

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Madison, Wis., Sept. 20.—Under the specific direction of the legislature the schools of the state are singing the national anthem, "The Star Spangled Banner," at the exercises this year. One of the last things of the legislature was to pass a resolution directing the state superintendent to take such steps as may be necessary to have patriotic songs sung in all of the schools of the state. A copy of this resolution has just been sent to the schools.

"All schools are requested to do their part in carrying out the provisions of this resolution," said Superintendent Cary today. "Every pupil in the upper grades, and high school should know by heart and be able to sing the leading patriotic songs. The singing of such songs should be a frequent school exercise."

BANKERS AND FARMERS BOOST WHEAT ACREAGE

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
Madison, Sept. 20.—Bankers and farmers throughout Wisconsin have combined successfully to increase Wisconsin's wheat acreage. While exact figures are not obtainable at this time, it is estimated that this increase will be between five and twenty per cent. Recent frosts, it is said, killed a lot of wheat which cut down the increased acreage considerably.

During the summer one hundred bankers and one thousand farmers as official growers of wheat organized to sow 120,000 acres of winter wheat.

Dandruffy Heads Become Hairless

If you want plenty of thick, beautiful, glossy, silky hair, do by all means get rid of dandruff, for it will starve your hair and ruin it if you don't.

It doesn't do much good to try to brush or wash it out. The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it, then your scalp is entirely free. To do this, get about four ounces of ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most if not all of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop, and your hair will look and feel a hundred times better. You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive and four ounces is all you will need, no matter how much dandruff you have. This simple remedy never fails.

HOW TO JUDGE A WOMAN BY HER HAIR

There is real common sense in just noticing whether the hair is well kept to judge of a woman's neatness, or good taste. If you are one of the few who try to make the most of your hair, remember that it is not advisable to wash the hair with any cleanser made for all purposes, but always use some good preparation made expressly for shampooing. You can enjoy the very best by getting some camellia from your druggist, dissolve a teaspoonful in a cup of hot water. This makes a full cup of shampoo liquid, enough so it is easy to apply it to all the hair instead of just the top of the head. Dandruff, excess oil, and dirt are dissolved and entirely disappear. Your hair will be so fluffy that it will look much heavier than it is. Its texture and softness will also delight you, while the stimulated scalp gives the health which insures hair growth. tragic air. The whole world is at Louise's feet tonight. You mustn't let her know how absurdly you have been feeling. Tomorrow you will find that every paper in London will be acclaiming her genius."

John squared his shoulders. "All the same," he declared grimly. "If I could burn the theater and the play, and lock up Grailot for a month, tonight, I'd do it."

CHAPTER XVI.

The days and weeks drifted into months, and John remained in London. His circle of friends and his interests had widened. It was only his relations with Louise which remained still unchanged. Always charming to him, giving him much of her time, favoring him, beyond a doubt, more than any of her admirers, there was yet about her something elusive, something which seemed intended to keep him so far as possible at arm's length.

There was nothing tangible of which he could complain; this probationary period was of his own suggestion. He bore it grimly, holding his place, whenever it was possible, by her side with dogged persistence. Then one evening there was a knock at his door, and Stephen Strangeway walked in.

Stephen, although he seemed a little taller and gaunter than ever, though he seemed to bring into the perhaps overworn atmosphere of John's cold sitting room something of the cold austerity of his own domain, had evidently come in no unfriendly spirit. He took both his brother's hands in his and gripped them warmly.

"I can't tell you how glad I am to see you, Stephen," John declared.

"It has been an effort to me to come," Stephen admitted. "I am one of the old-fashioned Strangeways. What I feel is pretty well locked up inside. The last time you and I met perhaps I spoke too much; so here I am!"

"It's fine of you," John declared. "I remember nothing of that day. We will look at things squarely together, even where we differ. I'm—"

He broke off in the middle of his sentence. The door had been suddenly opened, and Sophie Gerard made a somewhat impetuous entrance.

"I'm absolutely sick of ringing, John," she exclaimed. "Oh, I beg your pardon! I hadn't the least idea you had anyone with you."

She stood still in surprise, a little apologetic smile upon her lips. John hastened forward and welcomed her.

"It's all right, Sophie," he declared. "Let me introduce my brother, may I? My brother Stephen—Miss Sophie Gerard."

Stephen rose slowly from his place, laid down his pipe, and bowed stiffly to Sophie. She held out her hand, however, and smiled at him delightedly.

"How nice of you to come and see your poor, lonely brother," she said. "We have done our best to spoil him, but I'm afraid he is very homesick sometimes. I hope you've come to stay a long time and to learn all about London, as John is doing. If you are half as nice as he is, we'll give you such a good time!"

From his great height, Stephen looked down upon the girl's upturned face a little astutely. She chattered away, entirely unabashed.

"I do hope you're not shocked at my bursting in upon your brother like this! We really are great pals, and I live only just across the way. We are much less formal up here, you know, than you are in the country. John, I've brought you a message from Louise."

"About tonight?"
She nodded.
"Louise is most frightfully sorry," she explained, "but she has to go down to Streatham to open a bazaar, and she can't possibly be back in time to dine before the theater. Can you guess what she dared to suggest?"

"I think I can," John replied, smiling. "Say you will, there's a dear," she begged. "I am not playing tonight. May Enser is going on in my place. We have a week ago. I had two lines to pay on Saturday, and I haven't had a decent meal since then. But I had forgotten," she broke off, with a sudden note of disappointment in her tone. "There's your brother. I mustn't take you away from him."

"We'll all have dinner together," John suggested. "You'll come, of course, Stephen?"

Stephen shook his head.
"Thank you," he said. "I am due at my hotel. I'm going back to Cumberland tomorrow morning, and my errand is already done."

"You will do nothing of the sort!" John declared.

"Please be amiable," Sophie begged. "If you won't come with us, I shall simply run away and leave you with John. You needn't look at your clothes," she went on. "We can go to a grillroom. John shan't dress, either. I want you to tell me all about Cumberland, where this brother of yours lives. He doesn't tell us half enough!"

John passed his arm through his brother's and led him away.
"Come and have a wash, old chap," he said.

They dined together at Luigi's, a curiously assorted trio—Sophie, between the two men, supplying a distinctly alien note. She was always gay, always amusing, but although she addressed most of her remarks to Stephen, he never once unbent. He ate and drank simply, seldom speaking of himself or his plans, and firmly negating all their suggestions for the remainder of the evening. Occasionally he glanced at the clock. John became conscious of a certain feeling of curiosity, which in a sense Sophie shared.

"Your brother seems to me like a man with a purpose," she said, as they stood in the entrance hall on their way out of the restaurant. "Like a prophet with a mission, perhaps I should say."

John nodded. In the little passage where they stood, he and Stephen seemed to dwarf the passers-by. The men, in their evening clothes and pallid faces, seemed suddenly insignificant, and the women like dolls.

"For the last time, Stephen," John said, "won't you come to a music hall with us?"

"I have made my plans for the evening, thank you," Stephen replied, holding out his hand. "Good night!"

He left them standing there and walked off down the Strand. John, looking after him, frowned. He was conscious of a certain foreboding.

"I suppose," Sophie sighed, as they waited for a taxicab, "we shall spend the remainder of the evening in the usual fashion?"

"Do you mind?" John asked.
"No," she assented resignedly. "That play will end by making a driving idiot of me. If Louise is tired tonight, though, I warn you that I shall insist upon supper."

"It's a bargain," John promised. "We'll drive Louise home, and then I'll take you back to Luigi's. We haven't been out together for some time, have we?"

She looked up at him with a little grimace and patted his hand.

"You have neglected me," she said. "I think all these fine ladies have turned your head."

She drew a little closer to him and passed her arm through his. John made no responsive movement. He was filled with resentment at the sensation of pleasure that her affectionate gesture gave him.

The curtain was up and the play in progress when they reached the box that John had taken for the season. The spell of it all, against which he had so often fought, came over John anew. He set his chair back against the wall and watched and listened, a veritable sense of hypnotism creeping over his senses. Presently the same impulse which had come to him so many times before induced him to turn his head, to read in the faces of the audience the reflection of her genius. He had often watched those long lines of faces changing, each in its own way, under the magic of her art. Tonight he looked beyond. He knew very well that his search had a special object. Suddenly he gripped the arms of his chair. In the front row of the pit, sitting head and shoulders taller than the men and women who lounged over the wooden rest in front of them, was Stephen. More than ever, among these inappropriate surroundings, he seemed to represent something almost patriarchal, a forbidding and disapproving spirit sitting in judgment upon some modern and unworthy wantonness. His face, stern and grave, showed little sign of approval or disapproval, but to John's apprehending eyes the critical sense was there, the verdict foredoomed. He understood as in a flash that Stephen had come there to judge once more the woman whom his brother desired.

The curtain went up again and the play moved on, with subtle yet inevitable dramatic power, toward the hated and dreaded crisis.

The play came to an end presently, amid a storm of applause. The grim figure in the front of the pit remained motionless and silent. He was one of the last to leave, and John watched his retreating figure with a sigh. Sophie drew him away.

"We had better hurry round," she said. "Louise is always very quick getting ready."

They found her, as a matter of fact, in the act of leaving. She welcomed them naturally enough, but John fancied that her greeting showed some signs of embarrassment.

"You knew that I was going out to supper tonight?" she asked. "Oh didn't I tell you? The prince has asked the French people from His Majesty's to meet Mr. Grailot at supper. I am hurrying home to dress."

John handed her into her waiting automobile in silence. She glanced into his face.
"Is anything the matter?" she asked.
"Nothing."

"The prince would have asked you, without a doubt," Louise continued, "but he knows that you are not really interested in the stage, and this party is entirely French—they do not speak a word of English. Am I wrong? Sophie, take care of him, and mind you behave yourselves!"

She waved her hand to them both and threw herself back among the cushions as the car glided off. John walked to the corner of the street in gloomy silence. Then he remembered his companion. He stopped short.

"Sophie," he begged, "don't hold me to my promise. I don't want to take you out to supper tonight. I am not in the humor for it."

"Don't be foolish!" she replied. "If you stay alone, you will only imagine things and be miserable. We needn't have any supper, unless you like. Let me come and sit in your rooms with you."

"No," he decided, almost roughly. "I am losing myself, Sophie. I am losing something of my strength every day. Louise doesn't help as she might. Don't stay with me, please. I am beginning to have moods, and when they come on I want to be alone."

She drew a little closer to him.
"Let me come, please!" she begged, with a pathetic, almost childlike quiver at the corner of her lips.

He looked down at her. A sudden wave of tenderness swept every other thought from his mind. His mental balance seemed suddenly restored. He hailed a passing taxi and handed Sophie into it.

"What a selfish pig I am!" he exclaimed. "Anyhow, it's all over now. We'll go back to Luigi's to supper, by all means. I am going to make you tell me all about that young man from Bath!"

Dinner Stories

When he came into the room where she sat he was struck at once by her marvelous beauty. At first she did not observe him, but finally she glanced in his direction.

There was something about him that caused her to unbend from her hauteur.

She fell quickly into his vein of merry banter, and when at last he left she rolled her eye at him.

With that innate courtesy for which our hero was celebrated he picked up her glass eye and returned it to her.

She was a fisherman's daughter, and wore her hair in a net. The city youth came round to court her, and here are a few things he said:

"My love, you hold first place in my heart. Although I 'founder' about in expressing myself, my 'sole' wish is that you will save me from becoming a 'crabbed' old bachelor. I shall stick to you closer than a 'limpet', and from you a 'wink'll' be the rule to guide. Together we'll 'skate' over life's rough rocks, and when I look at your hand I shall say, 'Fortune smiled upon me when I put 'herring' there.'"

And the lady dropped her eyes and sweetly murmured, "You giddy Ripper!"

"Now, here is a showcase," said the dealer, pointing to a peculiar looking specimen of his ware, "that is bound to become popular. It magnifies everything put in it to double its natural size."

"Can't use it in my business," replied the prospective customer. "What I want is a case that will seemingly reduce the actual size of its contents one-half."

"What is your line?" asked the dealer.

"What is your line?" asked the dealer.

"My specialty is ladies' shoes."

ROCK COUNTY BOY WRITES OF VOYAGE

Robert Bentley, of Edgerton, Member Of 13th U. S. Engineers Now in England

In the following letter from Robert Bentley of Edgerton, to his grandfather, Mr. J. M. Evans, a story is told of the journey of the 13th U. S. Engineers across the Atlantic to England. Young Bentley studied at the University of Wisconsin at Madison, and is now in England, where he is working on the war effort. The following is the letter.

Dear Grandfather: We arrived here last night by train from a long journey. We did not come direct over. Laid in Halifax harbor for four days waiting for our ship. There were four boats carrying us, and we were not until we reached the real danger zone when the destroyers came to meet us. We saw no submarines. The sea was very rough for a couple of days and most of the boys were sick. I didn't get sick but didn't feel very good.

We are to stay here a few days and learn something from the English soldiers before going to France. This is a very nice camp and the weather is fine. Some of the boys have been in London so I suppose I'll have a chance to go in. They say we are to be in London.

We found a very well equipped American Y. M. C. A. but they tell us we must be careful with paper, so we write on both sides.

We haven't received any mail from home yet, but may in a few days. We are waiting for a short time. It's hard to wait when you're not allowed to say anything much. This letter will be censored and maybe some of it obliterated. We are instructed to say we are "somewhere in England and well. I am well and quite happy. Everything is very interesting."

England is a very pretty country with its bridges and gardens. The towns all look alike. Houses are nearly all the same shape and color and very close together. The railroads with their little engines running together with chains were quite amusing to our men.

With I might hear from home soon. You'll not receive this letter probably for two or three days. I've run out of paper, so must stop.

Love to all,

ROB.
